Tommy Fleetwood joins OMEGA's line-up of golfing greats

April 4th, 2018: English golfer Tommy Fleetwood is the latest addition to OMEGA's already impressive roster of golfing ambassadors.

The 27 year old player from Southport, a rising star on the European and PGA tours, has already claimed four tournament victories and is the 2017 Race to Dubai Champion.

2017 also saw the young golfer finish strongly in the US Open and World Golf Championships in Mexico.

Since Tommy Fleetwood was a child, sneaking on to Royal Birkdale with his father, he's been obsessed with golf. And the game is still very much a family affair, as his wife Clare is also his manager.

The CEO and President of OMEGA, Mr. Raynald Aeschlimann extended a warm welcome to Tommy Fleetwood, saying: "At OMEGA, we love golf and it's a great thrill to have a passionate player like Tommy join our team of ambassadors. We're proud to play a part in his very promising career".

Tommy Fleetwood was equally enthusiastic about the decision. The driven young professional responded by saying: "Omega is very special to me, I'm not only proud to be an ambassador for one of the world's most prestigious brands, I'm also very honoured to be joining two elite players I'm lucky enough to call friends. I'm really looking forward to all of us working together".

Tommy Fleetwood is in celebrated company. OMEGA's roster of ambassadors is impressive, with Rory McIlroy, Sergio Garcia and Michelle Wie already flying the brand's flag on the world's best golf courses.

For years, OMEGA has been associated with outstanding golf events, including the PGA Championships, the Ryder Cup, the OMEGA Dubai Desert Classic and the OMEGA European Masters.
